SAW INC. REOPENS JUST-A-BUCK DOLLAR STORES IN NORTHEAST OHIO

Two locations provide important training for adults with developmental disabilities

Maple Heights, OH — SAW Inc., which provides services for adults with developmental disabilities, is happy to announce the reopening of its two Just-A-Buck dollar stores after having to close due to the pandemic. SAW Inc. owns and operates Just-A-Buck franchises in South Euclid and Parma, OH through which it provides retail job training for its individuals.

“Having to temporarily close our Just-A-Buck locations as well as our six adult day centers due to COVID-19 has been difficult because we know that our individuals rely on these services to develop effective work habits, behaviors, skills, and social interaction in a supportive environment,” said Judy Carey, CEO of SAW Inc. “However, we knew it was necessary to keep our individuals, staff members, and their families safe. We are thrilled to begin safely re-opening our stores and facilities in line state and county guidance.”

As part of its group employment and vocational habilitation programming, SAW Inc. partners with 20 companies throughout greater Cleveland including L’Oreal USA, Cintas Corporation, and various state and county departments. The Just-A-Buck stores provide important paid training in preparation for these and other positions.

“From working stock and inventory to the cash register and more, Just-A-Buck gives students an opportunity to give retail a try once they’re out of school, and allows adults who have worked in other industries gain additional experience,” said XX manager of the Parma location. “By shopping at Just-A-Buck, people get to enjoy a deal while helping these individuals work toward achieving their full potential. We’re excited to welcome our employees and customers back!”

Both the South Euclid at 4507 Mayfield Road and Parma at 1844 Snow Road locations require employees and customers to wear masks and have implemented social distancing and other safety measures. Stores are open daily. Please contact each location for further information on hours.
